Dr. Doyle noted that discussions are under way with the City of Albuquerque to develop a software factory as a pipeline for high-paying and high-demand jobs for NMT students. Regent Lepre noted that the LFC will meet on campus on July 15, giving the University an opportunity to tell its story, which doesn’t happen at LFC hearings in Santa Fe. NMT would like to eliminate the requirement for capital project matching funds, as previously done under HED Secretary Rodriguez. Another LFC focus is a university’s return on investment (ROI), Lepre said, adding that the NY Times named New Mexico Tech as having the best ROI value in the state.
